THE people of Boston can have as fine a city as they want, provided they want it badly enough to be willing to pay for it. Nothing so good as a fine city is to be had for nothing. It will cost a great deal of time and energy and some money. If the people of Boston decide that they have not time to make their city what they would like to have it be, it will mean that they have other things which they would rather be doing with their time than improving their city. If they decide that they have not energy enough or money enough to make their city what it ought to be, it will mean that there are other things which they prefer and for which they would rather give their energy and their money. The whole question, therefore, is whether the people of Boston would rather have the finest city in the world or whether they would rather use for other purposes the time and energy and money necessary for the accomplishment of that purpose.—Professor Thomas N. Carver of the Department of Economics of Harvard University.

BOSTON--1915

Boston-1915 is a simple, practical proposition to apply to the activities of the city what every well-managed business partnership applies to its factory, shop or store—to have every department working in close co-operation with every other, in order that results may be produced most quickly, economically and satisfactorily.

Boston-1915 does not expect to perform miracles. It hopes in the next five years to see some things finished and others so well started that they are sure to be completed properly. And there are still other things which can never be regarded as done once for all, but which it is hoped Boston will be set in the best way of doing—things that must continue to be done as long as the city exists, such as competent street cleaning, adequate sanitation, intelligent planning of physical expansion, and proper provision for people's health, comfort and recreation.

The reason for selecting 1915 as the year in which Boston shall make an examination of what it has succeeded in doing or in getting started, was that much is gained by definiteness in such matters, just as a man or woman is more certain of really doing a thing by saying in advance, "I will do it before the first of next month," than by saying, "I will do it some time." And while if things are to be done right they cannot be hurried, yet they should not be dawdled over; so for the right doing of such big things as a city needs, five years seemed a reasonable length of time to set from every point of view.

Summed up, Boston-1915 proposes to help all the partners in the great business of making a community—all the men and women, boys and girls—to work together with the least waste of time, energy and money, and it proposes to help them increase the efficiency of their work by making with them a schedule of the things that should be done, setting the time when each should be finished or should be started on a permanent basis, and checking up progress from time to time to see that all is running smoothly.

Although Boston-1915 came into being only at the end of last March, there are already two or three things that illustrate the function which this new movement is intended to perform, and the way in which its work will be done. These are the establishment of a series of athletic games for the boys of Boston who could not leave the city during the vacation season; the introduction of a vocational bureau into the school system, so that the boy or girl who has to go to work shall make a start at bread-and-butter earning in the direction that will lead to the greatest success in life; the testing out of a theory that much of the contagious sickness among children can be prevented by careful inspection on the opening day of the schools, and the reservation of benches on the Common for the use of women during the noon-day hours.

Boston-1915 raised the funds and gave the prizes for the athletic games in order that the boys might learn by experience the importance of taking care of their health; that the "gang spirit" might be diverted from mischief to useful channels; that the value of playgrounds and their true purpose might be better appreciated; that a wholesome district rivalry might be started; and that healthful recreation might take the place of harmful idleness. It secured the co-operation of thirty of the best physicians in the city to make the medical examinations of would-be entries. Then it turned over the entire management of the games to the Playground Association. The size of the undertaking appears in the statistics of the games: 1775 entries altogether for the 24 meets; 450 entries in the final meet; 5,000 spectators at the last contest alone. This illustrates how Boston-1915 proposes to carry out work which it initiates—by putting it into the hands of whatever organizations already exist and are expert in doing it.

The introduction of vocational work into the public schools illustrates another function of the movement,—that of finding the means of meeting a need which is presented by another organization.

Late in the spring, the School Committee voted to ask Boston-1915 to establish a Vocational Bureau in order that boys and girls might have scientific advice in choosing the work they took up when they dropped their studies. There was already in existence a Vocational Bureau, that for two or three years had given thought and study to this very matter. Boston-1915 brought together the School Committee and the Vocational Bureau, suggesting to the latter that it should draft a plan. The plan was adopted; a vocational director was appointed to instruct the teachers, who alone have the chance to reach the individual scholar; means for securing funds were devised, and the work has been introduced into the school system this fall.

The matter of making a special inspection of the mouths and throats of children on the opening day of school, in order to reduce, if possible, the amount of contagious sickness among them, was presented, as was the matter of more stringent regulation of milk supply, to the United Improvement Association and the Chamber of Commerce, which bodies were influential in getting action to make a beginning in the right direction.

When the girls employed in one of the Boston department stores asked Boston-1915 to secure the reservation of benches on the Common for women during the luncheon hours of the working days, the co-operation of the Public Grounds Department was obtained, and, inasmuch as the law puts it beyond the powers of the police to make an absolute restriction that shall prevent any class of citizens from using public land on equal terms with any other class, co-operation among the larger department stores was secured for the employment of a man to see that the intention of the plan was carried out.

It is in ways like this that Boston-1915 wants to do other things for the betterment of the city, as they come along, by serving as a clearing house through which shall pass the city's needs and the means of meeting them; by bringing into closest co-operation men and women and organizations which until now have generally worked separately; by filling a hitherto unoccupied place. Among the matters that are most prominent in its preliminary program are the improvement of housing conditions; better protection against preventable diseases and accidents; a still broader and more practical system of education; more complete provision for the people's recreations, through the opening of more "civic centers" with libraries, gymnasiums, meeting halls, lecture courses, concerts and so on, and the addition to the city's equipment of more open breathing places in the congested districts.

The spirit of Boston-1915 has never been expressed better than in these words from a speech at the meeting where the movement was first made public:

"After all, it means, largely, that we propose that it shall be possible for a willing worker earning an average wage to live, himself and his family, healthfully and comfortably; to bring up his children in good surroundings; to educate them so that they may be truly useful, good citizens, and to lay aside enough to provide for himself and his wife in their old age. A city which provides less than that directly must make up for the deficiency in a more costly, indirect way; there is no escaping this alternative."

Though seemingly this provides for only one class in the community—the wage-earners—it really provides for the whole community, for it is impossible to conceive of attaining such conditions as those described, unless employers are extremely successful. Nor does the proposition stated leave beauty out of consideration, for a community prosperous as a whole—employers and working people, professional men and laymen—provides the best soil for bringing forth the city beautiful.

CITY PLANNING

A City Plan for Boston by 1912. (Plank 10 of the Boston-1915 "Plan for a Boston Plan.")

WHAT CITY PLANNING MEANS

City planning means a deliberate effort to forecast the future requirements and conditions of a city as a whole and to anticipate, in the form of correlated plans or projects, the various physical changes or improvements which such a forecast shows to be desirable and over which the public can exercise control. Its purpose is to avoid waste of effort, of money and of opportunity, through needless conflict and interference of independent lines of development and through failure to provide at the most opportune moment against inevitable needs. Its most conspicuous concern is the planning of streets, because these are the most extensive and most constantly obvious part of the physical city under direct municipal control; but it is essentially concerned with the rest of the public transportation system, railways and waterways, regardless of what agencies are employed in the construction and operation of this part of the physical equipment on which the city's life depends. Hardly less than the streets, the intelligent location of parks and playgrounds and public buildings and institutions in relation to each other and to the transportation routes and to the dwellings and workshops of the people, is well recognized as a most important part of city planning. Less clearly recognized, but no less real is the need of correlating with the above far-sighted projects for sewerage and for water supply and distribution, as for protected watersheds and reservoirs, which may be parks in themselves, or which may act as barriers to impede the proper development of the transportation system.

City planning has been described as "planning the location of all public improvements and utilities, so that the right thing may be put in the right place."

But broadly understood, it goes beyond the scope of public improvements strictly so called, and questions the effect of building ordinances, health ordinances and incidence of taxation, existing, proposed and possible, on the character and distribution of the physical developments that are likely to take place on private real estate. The form and nature of such matters of legislation as these constantly exert a controlling influence, positive or negative, upon the kind of thing which owners of real estate find it possible and profitable to do with their property. The influence cannot be done away with or ignored, and it is the hope of city planning so to direct it that the real estate investors shall find their best profit in building as healthful, convenient and beautiful a city as the earnings of the citizens permit them to enjoy, instead of receiving the maximum immediate reward for investments that involve in the long run the most serious economic and social waste for the city.

City planning, in the broad sense, both as a science and as an art is new; in America it is very new indeed and groping, despite the early example of Washington, first of all considerable cities to be planned with skill. Except that it did not deal with the effect of taxation and ordinances upon the development of private property, that remarkable work touched on all the important principles of city planning. First were selected the spots fixed by topographical or other reasons as suitable for important public buildings, for parks and squares and for other special purposes. Second: Between points thus determined and running in many directions, the main avenues were laid out with due regard to passing over the ground most favorable to prospect and convenience. Third: A system of secondary streets was laid out to divide the land intervening between these main thoroughfares into blocks intended to be of convenient size. A public water supply was planned. The only known form of transportation other than by road received careful attention in the scheme of quais, wharves and canals, and throughout, the appearance of the result was borne in mind, for beauty was sought, not primarily through costly decoration, but by the shaping and design of every item of the practical requirements in such a way that it should have the beauty of fitness and the charm of harmonious relationship with its surroundings.—Frederick Law Olmsted.

EXHIBITS:

(1) BOSTON

The centre of the first room is taken by a copy of the central part of the great State Model of the Metropolitan District, prepared by George Carroll Curtis. The original has been sent to the Paris World's Fair and is now in the Agassiz Museum, Harvard University.

Scale 1-14000, or 5 inches=1 mile approximately. The Relief includes the area known as The Boston Basin, with radius of seven miles. This Relief is most complete. It marks an advance in American work in the art of modelling natural forms of the land.

[See pamphlet. A Topographic Model of Metropolitan Boston, Commission of Mass., 1900, by Geo. Carroll Curtis.]

The plank No. 10 of the platform of Boston—1915 asks for a city plan for Boston by 1912, and the Chamber of Commerce has a City Plan Committee headed by Frederick Law Olmsted. The Curtis Model of Boston will be a valuable basis for the studies for the City Plan.

The first steps toward a comprehensive City Plan for Boston have already been taken by the action of the Metropolitan Improvement Commission. The invaluable report (published 1909) of this Commission finds a special treatment in Room 10.

(2) CHICAGO

The main feature of the first three rooms (entrance hall, Rooms 2 and 3) are the fifty-nine paintings and drawings for the development of the metropolis of the Middle West.

During the second half of the nineteenth century, the population of Chicago increased from 30,000 to 2,000,000. The people of Chicago have ceased to be impressed by the rapid growth of their city. They know that they must count on a population of 13,000,000 by 1950, and they are making their plans accordingly.

The COMMERCIAL CLUB OF CHICAGO, an association of cool-headed business men, has expended a sum of about $80,000 for the preparation of a comprehensive plan for the development of their city along the most efficient lines. The plan has been prepared under the supervision of Daniel H. Burnham and Edward H. Bennett with the co-operation of J. Guerin, the painter. It covers an area of 700 square miles, and provides for the proper relation and location of streets, boulevards, parks, waterparks, playgrounds, harbors, docks, means of freight and passenger transportation; for the dignified grouping of the public buildings in civic centers and all the other needs of a growing city. The great number of drawings show the great number of relations that had to be considered.

To carry that plan through will cost seven and a half millions a year for thirty-five years. This will be a considerable saving, the city having expended about nine millions a year on the average for the last twenty-five years, for just the kind of public improvements that this plan recommends. These savings will be brought about by making all future improvements at the right place, at the right time and in the proper relation to each other, i. e., by avoiding all expensive re-arrangements.

The saving of money, however, will not be the only compensation for the wise forethought of Chicago's citizens. Of infinitely more importance is the certainty that Chicago is going to be a city of health, joy and inexpressible beauty.

(3) WASHINGTON

The comprehensive planning of a great capital, the dream of kings, first came to pass in a democracy. It was George Washington who utilized the skill of an expert, trained under the French monarchy, to plan the streets, parks and public spaces of the American capital.

A century later, American experts strove to bring about a return to the essentials of Major L'Enfant's plan, where they had been abandoned. These drawings show their conception of the central feature of that plan, as adapted to the conditions of today.

Less pictorial, but more fundamental, are their recommendations for applying the principles of city planning indicated by L'Enfant to the new city beyond the original plan; principles governing the distribution of public open spaces and thoroughfares. The United States Library of Congress has sent seven paintings illustrating the anticipated development.

(4) OTHER AMERICAN CITIES

Besides Chicago and Washington, a great number of other American cities have undertaken more or less comprehensive city-planning schemes. This work is being largely done by a school of modern city planners, which has developed in Boston.

The following architects and cities are represented in Room 3:

Olmsted Brothers (KENNEWICK, Washington); UPLANDS OAK BAY, British Columbia), Warren H. Manning (GWINN and MUNISING, Michigan); WARREN, Arizona), John Nolen (SAN DIEGO, California); SAVANNAH, Georgia); MADISON, Wisconsin); READING, Pennsylvania); ROANOKE, Virginia), Kelsey and Guild (COLUMBIA and GREENVILLE, South Carolina), Charles Mulford Robinson (DENVER, Colorado), Brett and Hall (PRINCE RUPERT, British Columbia).

The Civic League of St. Louis has sent a fine plan for a civic center, and a picture of a treatment of the waterfront of St. Louis, proposed and pushed by the League.

The Chamber of Commerce of CLEVELAND, Ohio, has sent another set of Burnham drawings, showing plan and bird's-eye view of the new civic center for Cleveland, the $14,000,000 plans for which have been placed beyond the risk of failure.

The City Parks Association of PHILADELPHIA has sent a plan of the proposed avenues to be cut through its ill-planned gridiron blocks, and a bird's-eye view of the new parkway, which is actually being cut.

The problem of the gridiron block is especially difficult in hilly country. This is illustrated by two models of hills in the metropolitan district of Boston:

WOLLASTON HILL shows a road system laid out in disregard of the topographical conditions, imposing on the community forever the inconvenience and expense of using and maintaining streets of excessive steepness.

ASPINWALL HILL, BROOKLINE, shows a road system fitted to the form to the hill, avoiding the permanent encumbrance of steep and difficult grades, and securing a picturesque effect that grows logically out of the economic solution of the problem. (See report of the Metropolitan Improvement Commission, pages 197-198.) Both models were made by J. W. Baston. The models are contributions, Aspinwall Hill by S. S. Pierce & Co., Wollaston by Mr. F. L. Olmsted.

The question of the proper lay-out of streets (being only a part of comprehensive city planning) finds another treatment in the exhibits on streets, Room 10.

(5) FOREIGN CITIES

DISTRICTED CITIES. The German system of districting a city is a matter of special interest to the modern city planner. Room 3 contains the plans of FRANKFORT ON THE MAIN, DUSSELDORF, COLOGNE, MUNICH, ULM and VIENNA. All these plans show in vivid colors the different parts of the city reserved for different types of buildings.

Boston has its two building districts with limitations on the height of the buildings. The German cities, however, go much further. They do for the benefit of whole communities what the American real estate speculator often does for the benefit of himself and a small number of persons. They lay restrictions not only on the height, but also on the character of buildings, and fix whether the buildings shall be in blocks or detached, small residences or factories, etc. The number of building districts runs as high as fifteen. Each district and its real estate values are protected against undesirable neighborhood and the dangers arising from the erection of buildings of another character. Especially the home of the workingman can thus be protected against the tenement with its high rents and other undesirable features.

A diagram in Room 3 shows the great extension of municipal ownership of land, in and outside the city limits in Germany. The land held by the city of Berlin, for instance, amounts to 249% of the area of the whole city. These great stretches of land give the cities a strong hand in making public improvements. The land held by Berlin will be of special value to the city in the great undertaking of making a new city plan that is just under way.

About 100 cities, towns and villages of Greater Berlin are considering a common city plan that comprises the metropolitan area. This plan is to cover at the same time the problems of traffic, of districting the city, of reservation of open areas and provision for public buildings.

In co-operation with the architectural societies of Berlin, the cities of Greater Berlin have announced a competition among city planners for the best city plan for Greater Berlin. If this undertaking is carried through, Berlin will add 478,000 acres to its present area and 1,541,000 to its present population.

A large poster in Room 3 states the details of this great scheme for Berlin.

THE SCOPE OF INSURANCE

EXHIBITS:

Charts showing the different kinds of insurances in Massachusetts recognized by the Commonwealth, their history, the relative size of their business and importance.

SECTION VI

STATE BOARD OF CONCILIATION AND ARBITRATION

Bernard F. Supple. Office, State House, Room 128.

OBJECT:

To promote friendly relations between employers and wage-earners.

EXHIBITS:

Annual reports, Nos. 1 to 23.

One book of forms of procedure.

Awards of first prize at other exhibitions.

BOSTON FRUIT AND PRODUCE EXCHANGE

Harvey E. Sleeper, Secretary. Office, over Faneuil Hall Market.

OBJECT:

To facilitate transportation; disseminate business information; promote just principles of trade and generally to advance the interests of its 716 fruit, produce and provision members.

EXHIBITS:

Map of United States, showing principal sources of food production.

Maps of market district.

Photographs of Faneuil Hall Market.

Warm car schedule.

Fruit catalogues, etc.

WANTS SUPPORT:

In obtaining better commerce for Boston and New England, and a continual improvement in railroad and steamboat transportation; in impressing on shippers and buyers the value of Boston as a distributing centre of food products; in maintaining a strict adherence, on the part of shippers, to regular standards of quality.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS

Public buildings as useful to the people, their owners, as private buildings to private owners.

In the making of the "visible city," public buildings play no small part.

The average person, bent on studying a city, goes at it, very properly, in guide-book fashion. Like Mr. Baedeker, he begins with the city plan: "The railroads enter the city this way; the river winds its way thus; here are the highlands; there the level parts. This is the commercial quarter of the city; the homes of the people are here and here. The city's streets cross and meet and turn thus and so."

But what are the points of interest of the city?

They are chiefly the public buildings; and Mr.

Baedeker, in his guide-book, goes on to place his discriminating star against each library, church or other structure which meets with his approbation.

The public buildings of a city, broadly speaking, comprehend all structures which are not private. They include, as we run down the alphabet, armories and banks, churches and city halls.

Commercial buildings may be classed as public buildings; and hotels and libraries, markets and post offices, railroad stations and schools, all come under the same heading.

In the ideal city, its public buildings not only answer the needs which have created them, but also serve as accents of beauty in the general aspect of the city. The country church, dominating its little town, gives the needed touch to a scene otherwise monotonous. So the public buildings of a city give to it the same needful variety and emphasis. And they should do this not only by their own fitness and beauty, but also by another very important thing. This is their placing, their position. Imagine for a moment our Boston Public Library set on Temple Place. On such a narrow thoroughfare, we should practically lose its beautiful facade. The breadth of Copley Square is needed to set it off properly.

Or again, consider the charming little Paul Revere Museum in the North End. In Copley Square, its small and intimate exterior would be absolutely lost.

In the planning of the city of Washington more than a century ago, great care was taken in the selection of sites for all public buildings. They were placed where they could be seen most advantageously. The National Capitol, for example, is not only on high ground and at the end of the great mall, but some half a dozen other avenues also converge toward it.

Each avenue is beautified thereby. The Capitol, to speak in terms of business, is paying full dividends. All parts of the city gain just so much in having their own special view of Washington's greatest public building.

We are very fortunate in our own city of Boston, in the position of many of our public buildings. The State House fitly crowns our highest hill; Trinity Church and the Public Library face Copley Square. There are many other instances of the happy placing of public buildings.

But there is also a dark side to the picture. Take the school buildings in the North End. Had they been properly placed and related to each other, they would have formed an imposing and satisfactory group. As they stand, in struggling lines, elbowed by tenements, and badly lighted, they are not an assemblage of buildings that Boston need point to with pride.

Throughout our city are numerous other examples of public buildings both well placed and badly placed, some good in themselves, some bad. But the future is bright. For the interest in the selection of good sites and in the architectural fitness and beauty of public buildings is rising in leaps and bounds.

And when our people, as a whole, are once interested in their public buildings, they will insist on having only the best, and only the best most fittingly placed.

HOUSING

Healthy homes at reasonable rents for all the people.

What are the greatest problems in Boston's housing situation? The spread of congestion and the danger of conflagration.

In Ward 6, 21,000 persons were in 1905 living on 32 acres of land. One block contained 1,143 persons per acre, in three and four story houses, while the worst congestion in New York showed 1,672 persons per acre, living in five and six story houses. These figures indicate that the real density per acre in the North End is 3% greater than the worst conditions found in New York. Moreover, recent investigation has shown that this congestion is increasing and spreading. On the block in Ward 6, bounded by Salem, Stillman, Morton and Endicott sts., the population increased 18.6% between 1905 and 1909. Conditions in Ward 8 are similar, and serious congestion is beginning to appear in parts of the South End.

This congestion appears simultaneously with high land values, the average in Wards 6 and 8 being $4 to $5 per foot. The relation between high land values and congestion has been questioned, but the following facts are clear:

The United States Department of Labor gives the average wages of skilled workers as $750 per year or less, and of unskilled workers as $500. It also states that 12½% is the average proportion of income paid for rent. In Europe, 16½% has been accepted as normal, but even if we allow for Boston 20% for this item, the rent of the skilled worker should not exceed $150, and of the unskilled worker $100. Under our present building law, a three-room tenement of minimum size for these rents within the fire limits can be furnished only on land valued at $3 and $1 respectively.

There is no $1 land in the city proper, and while there is a limited amount of $3 land, the skilled worker who could afford to live on it is not satisfied with the minimum. The unskilled worker, whose wages are too low to pay car fares, and who must, therefore, live near his work, can only pay the higher rent by taking boarders. That means congestion.

The skilled worker, in order to get the accommodation which he demands, goes into the suburban wards, but even there he can get it only in wooden buildings set so closely together as to produce great conflagration hazard.

What are the remedies for these evils of congestion and conflagration which threaten our city? German cities have tried with much success a system of districting according to a comprehensive plan. This sort of city planning deals among other things with the locating of factories in the most advantageous position and the reservation of cheap land within walking distance, exclusively for cheap houses. This is the cure for the present evil conditions under which the poor man often lives on land worth $600,000 per acre, while the millionaire prospers on $1,000 land.

Other examples of how well housing can be done in connection with city planning are shown by Mr. Lever's experiment at Port Sunlight in England, and Messrs. Cadbury's at Bournville. Both communities furnish ideal housing conditions for the worker, and there is no adequate reason why the same conditions cannot be reproduced here, provided our city planning is undertaken on an adequate scale, and the natural advantages of the water front in Boston are developed.

It is an interesting fact, of which probably few people are conscious, that the unskilled worker and, to some extent, the skilled also, pays about one-third more per cubic foot for his housing accommodations than the well-to-do. This is owing to the fact that he buys at retail; that is, his landlord has to be compensated for the space in his building wasted by dividing it into small compartments, and for the loss by vacancy and bad debts which is necessarily incidental to housing the unskilled worker, whose employment is precarious. The expense of the landlord is also greatly increased by the strained relations which commonly exist between landlord and tenant in this class of property because the tenant regards the property as belonging to a heartless capitalist, and the landlord regards the tenant as a reckless brute. The result of this relation is great loss, and this, of course, has to be made up to the landlord by an increased rental. The landlord could afford to reduce his gross rent at least 1%, if these relations could be properly adjusted.

It was at one time important that as many members of a community as possible should own their own houses, but the time has come when this is by no means desirable for the average skilled mechanic; for if he owns a house he is thereby deprived of his ability to move from place to place, which is essential to enable him to sell his labor in the best market. There can be no denying, however, the great advantage to the community and to the individual which results from the ownership of property, and if some way could be devised by which the worker could have an interest in his house without an actual ownership of it, the results would be excellent.

The movement in England known as "co-partnership in housing" is a real solution of this problem, and it incidentally solves, also, the difficulty to which I have just referred, regarding the relation of landlord and tenant. Space will not permit a detailed description of the co-partnership housing societies of England, but a brief statement may be made about them, and the reader is then referred to the exhibit.

A co-partnership tenants society consists of a group of persons associated together for the purpose of purchasing a tract of land, building thereon houses for their own accommodation and owning the property jointly by means of share capital. No one tenant is permitted to own more than a limited amount of the stock, so that there is no danger of the control of the enterprise getting into a few hands. The dividends on the stock are limited to a reasonable return, and after this has been earned, the balance is credited to the tenants either in the form of a stock dividend or a dividend on rents. As a considerable part of the money necessary to conduct such an enterprise can be borrowed, it does not involve the tenants in a very heavy original investment, as only one-half of the purchase price of the stock allotted to each tenant need be paid at the outset, the balance being paid in instalments. The system has been in use in England now for a considerable number of years with great success, and the number of these societies is rapidly growing. They combine the advantages of ownership of real estate with perfect freedom for the worker, and the tenants being their own landlords, the serious difficulties which are commonly experienced in the relation between landlord and tenant are wholly done away with. The experience of these societies in England is so satisfactory that it is hoped and believed that societies can be started here with entire success.

PHILIP CABOT,

Chairman of the Housing Committee of Boston-1915.

EXHIBITS:

A series of 12 posters showing the housing situation in Boston and the remedy.

A TYPICAL NORTH END tenement of three rooms. Floor area 300 sq. ft., cubic contents, 2,400 sq. ft. It is occupied by 7 persons on the average, and in the block in which it stands 85% of the land is covered with buildings. Rents of these tenements average $11 to $12 per month. About one-half of the occupants are lodgers, the men paying $1 per week, the women 50c. The middle room has no window, and is lighted and ventilated only from other rooms. There are thousands in the city. No law prevents them. The kitchen, which looks out on a 2½ foot yard, must serve also as bedroom for two, dining hall, laundry and bath room for seven. The water closet (about 2' x 4') is used by three families, or 15 to 20 persons.

On the walls of this tenement are shown:

1. Three pictures showing filthy back yards.
2. Four pictures showing crowding in tenements.
3. Two charts showing the comparative weight and size of children brought up in 1, 2, 3 and 4 room tenements.
4. A chart showing the percentage of income paid by the families in one block for rent.

A MODEL OF THE BLOCK IN WARD 6 bounded by Snow Hill, Prince, Margaret Streets and Cleveland Place. 85% of the land is covered with buildings. The block is typical of bad conditions.

Six photographs of street scenes showing where and how children play when their homes are in such a block.

A THREE-ROOM MODEL TENEMENT from plans by George A. Tilden. Good light in every room, thorough ventilation, private bathroom, private piazza. This tenement could be let in Boston proper for $12 per month; in suburban wards for $9. It shows the minimum standard of accommodation for a typical family of 5. The conditions are by no means ideal. On the walls of this tenement are shown:

1. The plans and elevation of the house of which it is a part.
2. A map showing the density of population in the city of Boston and the number and location of licenses to do work at home.

3. A financial and economic statement of the English Co-Partnership Tenants Societies.
4. A chart showing the capital invested in these societies.
5. Plans and elevations of some garden suburb cottages, designed by Robert Brown (see opposite wall also).
6. Some charts and elevations of German suburban housing for working people.

TWO MODELS OF BACK YARDS, one showing average existing conditions, the other what might be done. (Contributed by the Charles Emmet & Rose Co.)

Thirty-one photographs and 3 charts showing children's gardens in WORCESTER, MASS.

Model and 5 plans by GROSVENOR ATTERBURY, showing a design for houses to which stories may be added without undue expense as land increases in value.

MODEL OF TYPICAL THREE-FAMILY HOUSE, of which thousands have been built in the suburban wards. Rents per tenement vary from $18 to $25. The placing of this type of houses close together has created in all these wards a conflagration risk, which is a great menace to the city.

Nine photographs showing attractive and inexpensive treatment of house fronts in BOSTON.

Six photographs showing unattractive treatment of same.

Six photographs showing how narrow streets are made narrower by projecting bay windows.

PREVENTION OF DISEASE AND ACCIDENT

Disease, like fire or bankruptcy, is easier to prevent than to cure. Over one-half of all disease ($6,000 out of the last 147,000 cases at the Massachusetts General Hospital) is preventable with the knowledge which we possess today. To apply this knowledge and to abolish this misery, as we put out a fire, would be expensive, but nothing like so expensive as the disease itself.

We wish to give some idea in this exhibit

(1) of the extent of preventable disease;

(2) of the cost of preventable disease;

(3) of the means which are and ought to be applied to prevent it.

We wish to rouse the people of Boston to the situation and to show them that they need not bear it. With proper team-work of public and private agencies we could stop most germ diseases, most of the accidents and poisonings, which together make up four-sevenths of all the disease in Boston. Thereby we could wipe off the slate Massachusetts' share of the $1,500,000,000 which disease now costs the United States every year (Prof. Irving Fisher). We need not submit, we ought not to submit, indefinitely to the waste of life, time and money which disease entails.

With these objects we have arranged exhibits only of preventable disease, by which we mean:

(1) Germ diseases, such as tuberculosis, typhoid diphtheria, scarlet fever, gonorrhoea and syphilis;

(2) Accidents on railways and street cars, in factories, etc.;

(3) Poisoning, such as that due to alcoholic liquors and illuminating gas;

(4) Malnutrition, such as often accompanies decayed teeth, faulty diet.

The agencies—health boards, hospitals, physicians, nurses, hygienic and educational associations—which constitute our army of defence against disease are not as yet organized into a compact body ready for attack and resistance. Before 1915 we hope to see all enemies of disease enlisted under a single flag and fighting to win.

THE TALKING ARC LIGHTS

These are two large arc lamps which talk, whistle, sing, or play musical selections—the sound emanating from the electric arc which is the source of light. Sounds produced by the human voice or a phonograph are impressed electrically at a distant point on the arc circuit, causing the arcs to reproduce the sound in all its variations. The arcs constitute in reality a very loud telephone receiver. These arcs will be used here to give talks on health. A telephone in the booth will be so arranged that at certain times visitors may ask the arc questions to which the arc will reply.

SANITATION

The water supply of Boston and of most of the cities and towns within a radius of ten miles is obtained from the Metropolitan Water Works System. The cities of Cambridge, Newton and Lynn and the towns of Brookline and Hyde Park are the only towns within this area which are supplied from independent sources.

THE METROPOLITAN WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD exhibits a large map showing the streams, lakes and reservoirs which constitute the present sources of water supply of the Metropolitan District, and showing also the additional sources which may be used when the capacity of the present sources are reached, and which are sufficient to supply a district many times greater than the present Metropolitan District. The map also shows the general method of distributing water throughout the district. Photographs are exhibited showing some of the interesting features of the water works system and illustrating the precautions which are taken to safeguard the purity of the supply.

The sewage of the down-town sections of the city is collected in a main drainage system, so-called, owned and operated by the city. The sewage is pumped through a tunnel under Dorchester Bay to large reservoirs on Moon Island in which it is held until the beginning of the ebb tide, when the whole body of sewage is quickly discharged into the water. Sewage from the outlying sections of the city and from nearly all of the cities and towns within a radius of ten miles is taken by the Metropolitan Sewerage System. The sewage from the district north of the city is conveyed through Winthrop across Shirley Gut to Deer Island, and is discharged continuously through an outlet at Deer Island Light on the edge of the main ship channel. The sewage from the southerly section of the district is conveyed through a large intercepting sewer to Nut Island off Quincy, from which it is taken through pipes laid in the bottom of the harbor to a point off Peddocks Island, where it is discharged from 30 to 40 feet below the surface of the water.

THE SEWER DIVISION OF THE STREET DEPARTMENT exhibits photographs showing features of interest in that portion of the sewerage and sewage disposal system owned and operated by the city.

In the exhibit of the METROPOLITAN WATER AND SEWERAGE BOARD a map is shown outlining the system of main sewers, in which the sewage from the various cities and towns is collected, and showing the points of discharge in Boston Harbor.

Both the Metropolitan Water Works and the Metropolitan Sewerage System were planned by the State Board of Health by direction of special acts of the Legislature. This board in the exercise of its regular duties supervises the sources of water supply of the Metropolitan District and of the cities and towns which are supplied independently, and has supervision also of the sewage disposal systems and of the waters of the harbor and of the various rivers in the state. Frequent examinations are made of the different sources of water supply, both by inspection and by chemical, microscopical and biological analysis, and the condition of the waters of the harbor is constantly under the surveillance of the board.

Samples of water supplied to the residents of the Metropolitan District, both from the Metropolitan System and from sources used by the cities and towns which are not supplied with Metropolitan water, are exhibited by the STATE BOARD OF HEALTH, and samples are also shown of water taken from the harbor within the areas most affected by the discharge of sewage, showing the rapid disappearance of the sewage when it mingles with the sea water and the almost inappreciable effect at the present time of the discharge of the sewage from the Metropolitan District.

Samples are also shown of the water of the upper harbor which is not in any way affected by the discharge of sewage through the Metropolitan outlets, but which is much less pure than the water a short distance from the large sewer outlets, due to the discharge into the upper harbor of considerable quantities of polluting matters from vessels, from wharves and from storm water overflows.

The State Board of Health has maintained for many years an experiment station at Lawrence, where investigations have been made relative to the purification of sewage and water. The results of these experiments have had a most important bearing upon sewage purification throughout the world, and practically all of the sewage purification and water purification plants in use in Massachusetts are based upon these experiments. A model is shown of the modest experiment station in which this valuable information has been obtained, together with an exhibit of the results of some of the experiments which are being conducted there.

THE MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY has for several years maintained a sewage experiment station in which experiments have been made upon the purification of the sewage of Boston. The results of the work at this experiment station have been published from time to time, and have added materially to the knowledge on the subject of sewage purification. The Institute of Technology exhibits in the Sanitation Department the work which is being done and has been done at this experiment station.

WILLIAM S. JOHNSON.

EXHIBITS:

The special sanitary exhibit of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology illustrates certain of the problems which are being solved in its Sanitary Research Laboratory and elsewhere by its graduates. Views, models and samples of sewage represent the work of the Experiment Station at Dorchester, where a plan has been worked out for the purification of Boston sewage when the present method of discharge into the harbor becomes intolerable. Charts illustrate the relation between typhoid fever and polluted water, and other figures show some of the organisms which injure water supplies, and some of the methods used in studying them. Photographs are shown of the smoke nuisance and the dust nuisance, from which Boston suffers, and the effect of bad air in industrial establishments is indicated by several diagrams. The series of figures nearest the east exit deal with the problem of mosquitoes and malaria, particularly as it has been met and solved in the Fresh Pond Marshes of Arlington, Belmont, Cambridge and Somerville.

A model showing the daily average consumption of water in the city of Boston, from 1850-1915 has been contributed by the Kinney Manufacturing Co.

PARKS AND PLAYGROUNDS

The boy without a playground is the father of the man without a job.—JOSEPH LEE.

We must make our parks, parks and playgrounds combined.

It has been conceded that the system of parks which has been developed and planned for the Boston District is the best in the world, both as regards practical convenience and artistic landscape merit. However we may think that we have the best, yet a little closer examination of the facts will show that we should not be self-satisfied.

There are many portions of the park system which are not complete; some land yet remains to be acquired to round out the plans as designed. Even in the parks which are already constructed, there remain many unfinished portions which are perfectly apparent to the trained eye, and especially to those who come from other cities to see the manner in which our parks are developed, cared for, and used.

The Boston Metropolitan District has a larger park area per capita than any other city in the United States, taking the four largest cities, according to the United States census tables of 1905. The comparison follows:

	POPULATION	PARK AREAS (acres)	PEOPLE PER ACRE
New York . . . . .	4,403,000	6,980	630
Chicago . . . . .	1,990,750	3,391	590
Philadelphia . . . . .	1,417,062	3,959	357
The Boston Metropolitan District . . . . .	1,265,162	15,175	80

The one great criticism of our parks is that they are not used as they should be, in comparison with those of cities like Chicago and New York. People do not appreciate the advantages of such areas as have been provided by public funds, and the stranger might travel through the parks for a whole day without seeing picnics or any of the features for which parks are designed. Whatever the cause, there should be a campaign of education so that people will learn to use the parks rather than abuse them. There should be provided in the parks more features of amusement such as croquet lawns, tennis courts, swings, scups, see-saws, sand courts, and many other features which will delight the children as well as the older folk. People seek amusement, and if the means are provided they will use them.

Among the features which need special attention in the Metropolitan District is a zoological garden which has been suggested in many parts of the district. The latest site chosen is in the south-westerly portion of the Middlesex Fells Reservation in an area large enough to provide for indigenous animals, so that they will appear in natural surroundings instead of being cooped in the usual manner. Many citizens of Boston are interested in having a zoo, and funds probably could be collected to procure the animals, if the site is provided.

Another desirable feature is an aquarium at Marine Park, South Boston. This project has been held in abeyance for nearly 20 years, the site having been provided and schemed for by the late Frederick Law Olmsted, who was the landscape architect of the parks of the City of Boston at that time. The site was graded, and large pools were constructed so that all kinds of large marine fish could be kept. A museum building should be provided with the latest form of lighting to show the various kinds of sea fish to advantage.

The work of the State Forester needs special attention by every citizen, if we ever intend to make Boston a beautiful city and keep it so. The preservation of the forest and tree growth, and the planting of trees is the legacy which this generation can hand on to future generations, especially in the public grounds and along the streets and highways.

BOSTON NEEDS BY 1915

A zoological garden of indigenous animals.

A marine aquarium and marine museum.

A fresh-water garden of native birds and fish.

The acquisition of recreation centres designed for use and beauty within 10 minutes' walk of homes for residents in the Metropolitan District.

The installation of regular boat service on the Charles River from Boston to Watertown.

The general use of the Charles River Basin for all forms of aquatic pleasures and sports.

The development of Franklin Park along lines laid down in general plans: The Greeting, the Music Court, the Deer Park, and Little Folks' Fair.

The development of Marine Park along lines laid down in general plans.

The encouragement of the general use and not abuse of the parks of the Metropolitan District.

The development of the reservations for the general use of the people who use the electric cars, with playsteads, sanitariums, picnic pavilions, tennis courts, skating rinks and other forms of recreation.

Five-cent fare and better transportation to all parks, reservations and playground centers.

The preservation of existing trees from insect pests, and the planting of additional trees in public open spaces and highways.

HERBERT J. KELLAWAY.

RAILWAYS, DOCKS AND HIGHWAYS

Good Railways, Docks and Highways attract business; bad ones repel it.

I. THE BOSTON METROPOLITAN STREET SYSTEM

No plan was ever made for laying out the highway system of the Boston Metropolitan District as a whole. With few exceptions, all its main thoroughfares have developed from the straightening and widening of the trails and wagon roads chosen in early times by lumbermen, farmers, mechanics and peddlers. These men only built trails and roads of good gradient for the reason that steep grades were out of the question for their heavy wagons of light draft upon soft soil. Chiefly to these pioneer road-finders and their followers the Metropolitan District of Boston owes its only convenient system of through roads—the system of radial thoroughfares connecting Boston with its suburbs. These roads are generally wide, direct, and free from bad hills.

It is unfortunate that the direction and intensity of Colonial trade did not take the first ancestral road-finders afield in other directions. Had their activities led them from town to town around Boston, the District would doubtless possess today a fine system of circumferential thoroughfares, but unfortunately in all primitive communities circulation except in radial directions is generally rudimentary. Boston's circumferential roads are still rudimentary; they are narrow, crooked, steep and fail to join in a manner to facilitate through communication; and yet this type of town to town intercourse has already become a modern need and marks the uprising of suburban cities sufficiently centralized in character to require comprehensive radials of their own, independent of those which lead merely to Boston. The problem of securing these desirable suburban linkages has become wholly a question of planning. The era of success in haphazard road designing has long since passed. The thirty-nine cities and towns of the District (embracing a territory of 400 square miles) are in sore need of rational road communication and are sufficiently powerful to secure it by joining hands in a co-operative movement to that end. Up to the present time no effort in this direction has been made seriously except through the Metropolitan Park Commission and the Metropolitan Improvements Commission. In the past the District has accomplished greater co-operative tasks with success, and the time has fully arrived when it should again lay its hand to this work of modernizing its lines of communication while the suburbs are still in a formative state. By postponing necessary planning of this kind Boston Proper has spent over forty millions of dollars since 1822 in street widenings, straightenings and extensions.

II. THE RAILWAY SITUATION OF THE METROPOLITAN DISTRICT

There are four independent railroad lines entering Boston, handling their freight and passenger traffic at three nearly independent terminals. From these terminals (which are foci of congestion) passengers are distributed by changing into cars of other independent surface and elevated lines operating upon the streets and subways of the city. Freight is distributed in part by inconvenient belt line freight railways, but largely by wagons running through the streets from terminal to terminal and from the several ill-distributed freight yards.

The street railway (rapid transit) system of the city attempts to undo the congestion occasioned by the system of concentrated passenger terminal stations, and this attempt is made upon (and under) relatively narrow and congested streets arranged upon a radial system which nearly prohibits belt-line circulation. The wasteful results of this system of railway communication may be briefly summarized as follows: The economic waste of breaking car-load lots of freight for forwarding by wagon from the few isolated freight yards vs. forwarding this freight by rail to well-distributed classification yards; the waste of hauling by wagon vs. by rail or by lighter; the waste of operating terminal passenger lines (with the consequent shifting of cars, turning of locomotives, and re-making of trains) vs. the operation of through passenger lines; the waste of operating docks ill connected with one another by rail, car-floats or lighter with railroads feeding the shipping interests; the economic waste of attempting to undo by means of a street rapid transit system the congestion occasioned by the use of concentrated and ill-distributed steam passenger terminals.

Paris, Hamburg, Cologne and many other European cities have arranged their through passenger and freight lines in such fashion that freight and passengers may either go directly through the city upon new lines without breaking shipment and are well distributed by stations and freight yards, the tendency of which is to reduce congestion to its lowest terms and to make a minimum use of the streets for express wagon traffic and for abnormal rapid transit purposes.

III. THE DOCK SITUATION

The dock situation of Boston may be briefly described as follows: The best docks are conveniently situated to the railroads which do the smallest business in exports and imports, while the steam lines which enjoy the greatest shipping trade are not so intimately connected with the water front as convenience requires. Many fine docks have been built upon the harbor, which are so ill connected with railroads that ships are seldom seen alongside them, while other docks of an antiquated pattern well connected by rail are crowded beyond their greatest capacity. Among the better class of docks there are only a few which are thoroughly modern, the majority of them being behind the times. The dock facilities of the harbor are also out of class with the dredging operations which the government has carried on. The latter provides for a draft of boat and for a volume of traffic which is not well borne out in the docks themselves. Minor transportation from dock to dock by means of car-floats and lighters, which plays so large a part in the shipping operations of most cities, is almost absent in Boston, and yet there is no city in which the need of such communication is greater. Comprehensive plans showing the possibilities of the port have been prepared by the Metropolitan Improvements Commission, which show once more in a new form what has already been known for years, that the water front of Boston is singularly well suited for commercial development. Boston unquestionably possesses in it an asset of which it has never attempted in a businesslike way to avail itself. A solution of the railway problems of the city should form the first step in the solution of the dock problems, and the solution of both these problems should make Boston one of the greatest ports of the world.

DOCKS

A series of 5 posters showing:

THE ANTIQUATED CHARACTER of the older docks of Boston.

The schemes for modern docks prepared for Boston Harbor by THE METROPOLITAN IMPROVEMENTS COMMISSION.

The gross tonnage and imports and exports of the general railroads feeding the docks of Boston.

The Antwerp and Hamburg docks and their relation to Boston's needs and possibilities.

RAILROADS

A series of 5 posters showing how THE INCONVENIENT PASSENGER AND FREIGHT TERMINALS of Boston might be better arranged to reduce the cost of handling goods and to relieve congestion and delays.

Detailed plans for the railroads and terminals of Boston prepared by the Metropolitan Improvements Commission.

A STUDY OF THE RAPID TRANSIT SYSTEM of Boston prepared by George W. Wadsworth, Engineer, showing modifications in the subway and elevated connections intended to improve the convenience, speed, and economy of the present system.

An exhibit of maps, plans, models, and photographs illustrating:

The West Philadelphia terminals, and the New York terminals of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Models of Pennsylvania Railroad cars and car-floats.

Construction plans of railway tunnels.

HIGHWAYS

A series of posters showing:

The admirable radial thoroughfares of Metropolitan Boston.

The primitive system of circumferential thoroughfares.

The primitive village-like plan of typical Metropolitan cities and towns.

The minimum width allowable for traffic streets.

The congestion at State Street.

Typical town and city squares.

The needed connection between the Harvard and Wellington Bridges.

Proposed civic centers.

Development of the Charles River Basin.

Detailed plans for reorganizing the ill-connected circumferential and radial thoroughfares of the District, together with all the illustrations and maps in the report of the Metropolitan Improvements Commission.

A model of Washington Street, showing the relation to traffic congestion and subways. (Contribution of Gilchrist & Co.)

A model of Tremont Street showing the liberal accommodation for surface and subway traffic. (Contribution of R. H. Stearns & Co.)

Ten full-sized sections illustrating methods of road construction used by the Boston Street Department. Also 15 photographs.

Maps, charts and photographs of the Boston Wire Department, showing the progress of work in the systematic removal of overhead wires to underground conduits.

Maps, sections, photographs, and models from the Boston Transit Commission, showing the Haymarket Square station, the East Boston Tunnel, traffic congestion, and the general rapid transit lines of the city.

Maps and photographs from the Massachusetts Highway Commission, showing the mileage and construction of state roads.

Charts showing the “Homeward and Workward” movement of the crowds of New York City at various hours; also map and photographs from the Public Service Commission of New York.

Photographs of French and English boulevards.

Plans and photographs of Biltmore Village, N. C., street system, and plan for arrangement of streets in Guilford Park, Maryland, according to plans of Olmsted Brothers.

Chart showing the method of “Excess Condemnation” by which the Kingsway in London is to be financed. A great model of the Kingsway has been shipped from London to the “1915” Exposition and will shortly be set up. The model is loaned by the London County Council.

The question of the proper layout of streets finds additional treatment in the City Planning Rooms 2 and 3.

"1915" WHEEL

This wheel represents in an allegorical manner the idea of "1915"—the idea of civic planning in its broadest sense. It is also supposed to show the relation of the various activities working for civic betterment to each other and to "1915."

The hub of the wheel represents Boston. The spokes represent the various branches of activity working for the good of the city. Between the spokes are pictorial representations of some of the worst conditions. As the wheel revolves these conditions change from bad to good, just as these various organizations intend that they shall. Boston—1915 is represented here by the rim of the wheel, which binds together all these societies in an attempt to aid them to secure more quickly the results desired.

The small drawing at the base of the wheel shows the old wheel broken into many pieces because of the lack of a sufficiently strong binding rim.

"1915" CLOCK

This is designed to represent the value of co-operation in obtaining results such as are necessary in properly planning and running a city.

One half of the model shows several discs spinning around rapidly, developing a great deal of energy, but owing to lack of co-operation the hands do not point to any results.

The other half of the model shows how, when these discs are properly organized and brought together, they form a train of gearing which brings about results as indicated by the hand.

ROOM 16

BOSTON CHURCHES

EXHIBITS:

I. A general exhibit including:

- (a) Photographs of nearly all Boston churches.
- (b) Panels representing the social and philanthropic activities of the churches.
- (c) Map, illuminated by electricity, showing the location of the different churches.

ROOM 31

THE CURTISS BI-PLANE

This is the identical bi-plane in which Mr. Curtiss won the grand prize at the Aviation Meet in Rheims, France, bringing the next Aviation Meet to this country.

The weight of this machine is 550 pounds, and it measures 36 feet each way. The main planes are 4½ feet wide and about 28 feet long. They are placed 4½ feet apart, one directly above the other.

The front planes are 2 x 6 feet, placed 2 feet apart, and are controlled from the steering post governing the elevation of the machine; the rear plane is immovable and gives the machine stability. The rudder is placed at right angles to this, and is governed by the steering wheel used to turn the machine to the right or left.

The tip controls (the planes midway between the main planes at their ends) are governed by the shoulder control operated from the seat by the inclination of the rider's body from side to side.

The engine used is an 8-cylinder water cooled, manufactured by the Herring-Curtiss Company especially for airships. It turns the propeller, which is bolted direct to the shaft, at a speed of 1,300 revolutions per minute. The engine is equipped with centrifugal water pump, Bosch high tension magneto, oil pump, etc., and is entirely automatic.

Boston = 1915

IS A MOVEMENT FOR MAKING THE MOST OF BOSTON'S POSSIBILITIES

• • •

It makes no social, racial, religious or political distinctions.

It proposes to bring mutual help and support to all men, and women, and organizations working to benefit the city.

It will neither interfere with work already being done, nor undertake to do of itself anything which it can find anybody else ready or willing to do efficiently.

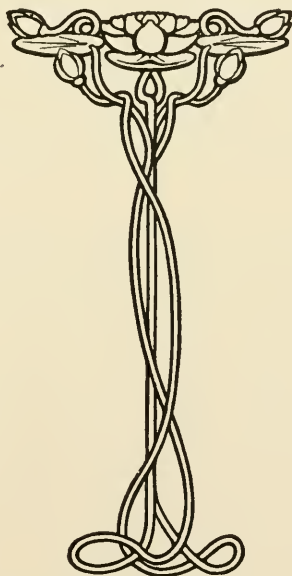

It intends to tabulate the needs of the city, and then get people together to work out results.

It gives an opportunity for everyone to do something for himself or herself by doing something for Boston.

It is Your Opportunity

FOREWORD

The compiler of the Boston-1915 Year Book is indebted to the publishers of the Boston City Directory, to the Associated Charities, and to the police, fire and other city officials for their generous assistance in trying to attain accuracy and completeness.

It is almost inevitable that errors or omissions should be found somewhere in a volume of this kind, and any corrections or additions will be received with appreciation.

The Boston-1915 Year Book was compiled under direction of Benj. F. Teel, by N. Willard Rogers.

In 1915 a man on an airship may see all Boston at a glance

—but he would have to come down and look in the City Directory to find where to buy or sell to the best advantage.

QUOTE rely solely on personal knowledge in doing business is like groping with a lantern. A view of the whole field is given by the classified lists in the CITY DIRECTORY.
Names in heavy type, which refer to a space at the back of the book, make it possible to select quickly those who specialize in the line you are looking for. These spaces are devoted to a more complete description of the house in question than possible under a single heading, and save much time and trouble in finding what you want.

The City Directory is a modern tool which every business man should own and use

BOSTON STREET INDEX

This Street Index is Used by Permission, Sampson & Murdock Co., Publishers of the Boston City Directory

COPYRIGHT, 1908, BY SAMPSON & MURDOCK CO.

The location of Streets, Places, Parks, Squares, etc., is given by the letter and number designating the square in which they occur on the Map. A few Streets and Courts too small to allow placing the name upon the Map have their location given in the Index. After the name of a street the word "street" is omitted.

*designates a public highway, **streets partly public.

The Post Office address is placed after name of street in parenthesis. When none is given, the address is Boston.

Abbreviations: al-alley, av-avenue, boul-boulevard, Br-Brighton, Chsn-Charlestown, et-court, Dor-Dorchester, E B-East Boston, J P-Jamaica Plain, Nep-Neponset, pl-place, rd-road, Ros-Roslindale, Rox-Roxbury, S B-South Boston, sq-square, st-street, ter-terrace, W R-West Roxbury.

 Clerk.

CITY DEPARTMENTS

Art Commission

64 Pemberton sq. All works of art becoming city property must have the approval of this department before they are accepted. This department also makes all contracts and orders for paintings, monuments, statues, busts, etc., for the city, and has charge of cleaning them.

Assessing Department

Room 18, City Hall. Makes all assessments, exemptions or abatements of taxes. All applications for rebates or allowances or corrections on tax bills (other than Gypsy Moth bills, which are handled by the Public Grounds Department) must be made to the Assessors.

Auditing Department

Room 20, City Hall. All bills against the City of Boston, either for services or supplies, must have the approval of the auditor before they will be paid by the city treasurer. Bills for supplies usually are rendered against the city in duplicate, one copy going to the city auditor and the other to the department to which the supplies were furnished. It is the duty of the auditor to assure himself that all bills presented against the city are for properly authorized expenditures; unless the expenditure they represent has been authorized in advance they will not be approved for payment. Whoever undertakes work for the city or furnishes supplies to it should, therefore, satisfy himself that his charge has been properly provided for before he begins his work or delivers his goods.

Bath Department

64 Pemberton sq. Has in charge all the City's public baths, both outdoor and indoor. For information as to the location of public baths, the hours during which they are open, etc., see Baths.

Building Department

Room 15, Old Court House. Issues permits for and inspects the erection and alteration of buildings; issues licenses to master and journeymen plumbers and gas fitters; keeps a register of all persons licensed to carry on the business of plumbing or gas fitting; issues permits for and inspects the plumbing and gas fitting work in all buildings; inspects elevators in buildings and reports upon accidents to them; passes on the building of bay windows or other possible obstructions of the sidewalks or streets; inspects theatres and public halls.

Board of Appeal

Room 720, Kimball Building, 18 Tremont st. Is a final court in all building cases; anyone who thinks himself aggrieved by an order or decision of the Building Department may take his grievance to the Board of Appeal, whose decision will be final.

Cemetery Department

Room 76, City Hall. Has charge of all cemeteries in control of the City of Boston. For a complete list of burial places and crematories, see Cemeteries.

Children's Institutions Department

30 Tremont st. Has charge of placing out children for adoption; maintains a corps of visitors for the inspection of the homes to which children are sent;
 has charge of the reformatory institution on Rainsford Island and of the Parental school for Truants at Spring st., West Roxbury.

City Clerk Department

Room 31, City Hall. Is the official curator of all city records. Also records, chattel mortgages, assignments of wages, liens upon vessels and married women's certificates. The City Clerk himself is the executive officer of the Board of Aldermen.

City Messenger Department

Room 26, City Hall. Is the official messenger of the city council and its committees; distributes all documents printed by the city; is the custodian of the City Hall building; has charge of City flagstaves and of the ropes and stakes used for closing streets and squares on public occasions and in case of fire.

This Department abolished on February 1, 1910, by the operation of the new City Charter.

Clerk of Committees Department

Room 35, City Hall. Acts as clerk of all committees of the city council; has charge of City Hall reference library and, under direction of the Committee on Licenses of the Board of Aldermen, of the licensing of all minors more than fourteen years old to sell newspapers or small wares, black boots, etc.

This Department abolished on February 1, 1910, by the operation of the new City Charter.

Collecting Department

Room 21, City Hall. Collects all taxes (such, for instance, as taxes on real estate or personal property), rates (such as the water charges) and assessments (such as those for street improvements; ) it collects all other bills of any kind due the city; to it are payable the charges for the use of municipal halls (such as Faneuil Hall and Ward rooms); it conducts the sale of property for non-payment of taxes.

Consumptives' Hospital Department

926 Tremont bldg. Is in charge of the Hospital for Consumptives in Boston and of the day camp in Mattapan, and pays for the board of consumptives who are "placed out." Information in regard to placing a person in such an institution as those referred to is to be obtained from this department.

Election Department

Room 1, Old Court House. Registers all votes. Registration is required not only before a citizen votes for the first time, but when he removes from one voting precinct to another.

Engineering Department

Room 49, City Hall. The city engineer is the responsible engineering official for all city engineering work other than that of the Sewer Department, which does its own engineering.

Finance Commission

COURTS

Municipal Courts of the City of Boston and of the several districts. Each court sits without a jury for the transaction of criminal business every week-day, except legal holidays, at 9 a. m.; for civil business, at various other times.

Each court has original jurisdiction of all crimes under the degree of felony (i. e., not punishable by death or imprisonment in the state prison), except conspiracies and libels and cases where an indictment or information is required. All except the central Municipal Court have jurisdiction also of felonies committed by juvenile offenders under 17, where the penalty is less than imprisonment for life, and of other specified offences, including practically all the minor crimes.

Every eviction or ejection suit (i. e., suit by summary process for recovery of land) must be brought in the one of these courts in whose district the premises are.

The courts are located as follows:
 East Boston District, Meridian st., near Paris.
 Charlestown District, Old City Hall, City sq.
 South Boston District, Dorchester st., cor. 4th.
 Roxbury District, Roxbury st.

1st class:—Letters and all matter sealed so that it cannot be examined without breaking the seal, except proprietary articles of merchandise, in simplest mercantile form, not in themselves unmailable. Postage 2 cents per ounce or fraction, for United States (including Hawaii, Porto Rico, Guam, Shanghai, China (U. S. Postal Agency), Canal Zone and the Philippine Archipelago or Tutuila, Mexico, Canada (except Newfoundland), Cuba and Republic of Panama. At least one rate (2 cents) must be prepaid to insure forwarding, except to Cuba and Republic of Panama. Limit of weight, 4 pounds. Postal cards, United States, Cuba, Mexico, Canada and Republic of Panama, 1 cent.

Letters and postal cards can be forwarded from one post office to another without additional prepayment of postage. All other matter can be forwarded only by prepayment of additional postage.

2d class:—Newspapers and periodicals issued as frequently as once in 3 months, rate, 1 cent for each 4 ounces or fraction; from a known office of publication and with a paid list of subscribers, 1 cent per pound; full prepayment of postage compulsory. No limit of weight.

3d class:—Books (printed), circulars, labels, photographs, proof sheets and corrected proof sheets with MS. copy accompanying the same, blank checks, drafts, insurance policies and other legal papers, hand-bills, posters and all matter of the same general character. Rate, 1 cent for each 2 ounces or fraction; full prepayment of postage compulsory. Seeds, cuttings, roots, bulbs, etc., may be transmitted in the mails for the United States, with postage prepaid at 3d class rate, but matter of this nature for Canada must be prepaid at 4th class rates. The limit of weight of packages of this class, is 4 pounds, except in the case of a single volume of a book, to which there is no limit of weight.

4th class:—Patterns, blank tags, bill heads, letter heads, playing cards, blotting paper bearing printed advertisements, merchandise, metals and all other matter not included in the 1st, 2d and 3d classes. Rate, 1 cent for each ounce or fraction. Full prepayment of postage compulsory. The limit of weight of packages of this class is 4 pounds, except in the case of a single blank book, to which there is no limit of weight.

Liquids (not vinous, spirituous, ardent or malt) and oils not exceeding 4 ounces liquid measure, salves, ointments and articles easily liquefiable and not liable to explode or ignite spontaneously, or by shock or jar, may be forwarded in the domestic mails when put up as prescribed below. If in glass bottles or vials, such bottles or vials must be strong enough to stand the shock of handling, and must be placed in a metal, wooden or papier-mache block or tube, not less than three-sixteenths of an inch thick, impervious to liquids, lined with felt or some absorbent material, and fastened with a lid to make it water-tight. If in tin or metal tubes, such tubes must be fastened with a lid and placed securely in a wooden block or tube open only at one end, and of same thickness as above. On all such packages, the sender may write or print his name and address, preceded by the word "From" and also the name of the article enclosed.

All classes of mailable matter may be registered; fee 8 cents in addition to postage.

Fees for Domestic Money Orders:—For sums not exceeding $2.50, 3 cents; over $2.50 and not exceeding $5, 5 cents; over $5 and not exceeding $10, 8 cents; over $10 and not exceeding $20, 10 cents; over $20 and not exceeding $30, 12 cents; over $30 and not exceeding $40, 15 cents; over $40 and not exceeding $50, 18 cents; over $50 and not exceeding $60, 20 cents; over $60 and not exceeding $75, 25 cents; over $75 and not exceeding $100, 30 cents.

A red flag with a black centre indicates that the storm is expected to be severe.

The pennants displayed with the flags indicate the direction of the wind: red, easterly (from northeast to south); white, westerly (from southwest to north). The pennant above the flag indicates that the wind is expected to blow from the northerly quadrant; below, from the southerly quadrant.

The hurricane warning consists of two red flags with black centers, displayed one above the other. It is used to announce the expected approach of tropical hurricanes, and also of those extremely severe and dangerous storms which occasionally move across the great lakes and the Northern Atlantic Coast. The flags are the same as the one now used for the distinctive signal, the pennants being omitted.

By night a red light will indicate easterly winds and a white light below a red light will indicate westerly winds.

Office open to visitors from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M.

Information by telephone until 4.30 P. M. also from 8 to 9.30 P. M.

BOSTON: A GUIDE BOOK

By Edwin M. Bacon

The native Bostonian as well as the stranger will find in this authoritative guide valuable information about Boston,—its streets, churches, car lines, historical monuments, suburbs and surrounding country. The material is arranged to be used for quick reference as well as for complete information. Every possible aid is provided in diagrams, photographs, descriptions and colored maps.

HISTORIC HOUSES AND SPOTS IN

CAMBRIDGE AND NEAR-BY TOWNS By J. W. Freese

The true story of The Washington Elm, The Old Manse, The Lowell House, The Longfellow House, Faneuil Hall and other noted landmarks in and about Cambridge. Every historical place of interest in this community is described briefly and completely and is accompanied by a good photograph.

CARLA WENCKEBACH

By Margarethe Müller

Professor Müller's biography of this noted Wellesley teacher and pioneer among women educators gives a perfect portrait of her wonderful personality. Her remarkable growth from a poor Frisian girl to a recognized leader in educational circles is described in a style rich in humor, sympathy and fearless faithfulness.

HANDBOOK OF THE TREES OF NEW ENGLAND

By Lorin L. Dame and Henry Brooks

Every species of tree found in New England is fully described in this manual. The description includes first the Habitat and Range, then Habit, Bark, Winter Buds and Leaves, Inflorescence, Fruit and Horticultural Value. The Illustrations were carefully drawn from original specimens showing different stages of growth.

THE NEW ENGLAND PRIMER

A perfect reproduction of the old-time primer used in the New England Schools of Colonial times. The queer rhymes and verses and the quaint form are decidedly unique. Even the color of the time-stained paper is reproduced exactly.

OUR MILK AIM

THERE is no milk obtainable for 9 cents per quart in Boston or elsewhere superior to our general supply. It is our aim, however, to provide greater Boston with milk of an even higher quality and one better satisfying our ideals of milk supply. We accordingly offer a Ten Cent Brand taken from dairies of especially high standard, from tuberculin tested cows, and having a very low bacterial count. It is hoped that the public will appreciate the importance of a high grade milk and the reasonableness of this price and support us in our ambition to have this Ten Cent milk widely used.

The House of Conrad

In 1905 this store, after twenty-one years of successful merchandising with a steady increase in business, arrived at one of those momentous points in a business career when larger opportunities open. This happened four years ago, when the chance came to move from the old quarters, a few doors above, to the more spacious store in the present building. The business then leaped into one which promptly became an important factor in the Boston retail trade.

These recent years of unexampled prosperity taxed even this much larger store to such an extent that it became necessary to open another floor this Fall—a 50% increase in the selling space occupied. The complete rearrangement of sections created practically a new store, and one that has been justly styled the

A New England nature-book—a companion volume to the author's recently published "Wild Pastures," of which the New York Sun, in a long and enthusiastic review, said: "We go far in search of scenes of beauty and it may be that we put ourselves to needless trouble. At any rate, Mr. Packard in his 'Wild Pastures' reminds us anew of our strange faculty of overlooking what is at our doors. The book has interested and delighted us. We are glad and grateful that it came our way."

THE AMERICAN WOOLEN COMPANY

is the largest producer of woolen and worsted cloths in the world.

Its mills are located in the seven great manufacturing states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut and New York.

This company commands many of the ablest minds engaged in the manufacture of textiles.

Its plants are models of up-to-date mill construction. Their equipment represents the most approved type of modern textile machinery.

The policy of the company's management has ever been to offer the best possible fabric values which the market affords.

This highly trained organization, with every facility at hand for securing the highest possible degree of perfection, places the American Woolen Company cloths in the front rank for value, quality, uniformity and assortment.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

THE PENNSYLVANIA STATION, NEW YORK CITY.
PHOTOGRAPHED SEPTEMBER 1909.

TRAINS WEST AND SOUTH.

The new station in New York will be opened next year, but in the meantime there are FOUR stations in New York from which the world's best trains leave every day for points in the West and South.

For speed and excellence of performance, the "Pennsylvania Special" stands at the head of railroad trains of the world. It leaves New York every afternoon and arrives in Chicago the next morning, eighteen hours later, and before the opening of the business day.

For comfort and excellence of appointment "The Pennsylvania Limited," the first "limited" in the field, has always been high in favor. It leaves New York in the morning and arrives in Chicago the next morning. It is the favorite of those who desire ease and comfort.

The "Chicago Limited," leaving New York in the late afternoon, reaches Chicago the next afternoon. It appeals to the business man who may devote more than eighteen hours to his trip.

In the same class with the "Pennsylvania Special" is "The 24-Hour St. Louis," the new fast train to St. Louis which leaves New York in the early evening and arrives in St. Louis just twenty-four hours later. It is the only twenty-four hour train between New York and St. Louis. It also reaches Cleveland in fourteen hours and Cincinnati in seventeen hours.

Leaving New York every morning, the "St. Louis Limited" runs to St. Louis on a somewhat slower schedule, but it is none the less attractive in equipment and appointment.

Between New York and Washington, the "Congressional Limited" is known far and wide as the best type of a day train.

There are a large number of trains leaving New York every day, at the most convenient hours, for the cities of the West, and the cities and resorts of the South, each one complete in every detail that appeals to the traveler.

The Power to Grasp the Future

The ability to project one's self beyond today, even beyond this life, to reach forward a few years or many years and successfully grapple with events far distant—THIS IS THE POWER for which mankind is constantly seeking, and

HERE IT IS—

The Power to Provide a Sheltering Home for Loved Ones.
The Power to Leave a Good Bank Account for Your Wife.
The Power to Protect the Younger Ones Depending upon You.

The Power to Give Your Daughter a Complete Education.
The Power to Start Your Son upon a Business Career.
The Power to Secure an Old Age Free from Worry.

THE SURE, SAFE WAY of properly providing for the Present and thereby acquiring the POWER TO GRASP THE FUTURE is obtained through the Liberal Policy Contracts of this Company.

DO IT TODAY and in 1915 you will have added greatly to your estate.

FACTS versus PREJUDICE

By what are you guided in your estimate of men—by facts which you know about them, or by prejudice?

By facts, of course.

This being so, does it not follow that the same tests should be applied to business enterprises?

Any successful man will tell you that some of his most profitable investments have resulted from independent investigation into the actual facts pertaining to propositions against which there existed popular prejudice.

The far-seeing business man apprehends the truth regarding a given enterprise in advance of his fellows. Foresight backed by courage confers upon him possessing it an immense advantage in the making of investments.

In the light of these truths, you are invited to consider a few plain facts in connection with THE RHODE ISLAND COAL COMPANY.

Rhode Island Coal, as prepared for consumption, burns as readily and as economically as the average commercial Pennsylvania anthracite.

It is high in carbon and normal in ash.

It gives off an intense heat of sustained power, and is practically free from the noxious gases common to most coals.

An ideal fuel for domestic purposes, it is equally desirable for gas-producer purposes and the making of briquettes—branches of the Company's proposition which in themselves promise handsome dividends.

The mine at Portsmouth, R. I., is a real mine, not a prospect. The coal beds underlie a large part, if not all, of the Company's four thousand acres.

The quantity of coal yet unmined, as Professor N. S. Shaler pointed out years ago, must be reckoned by the millions of tons. Diamond drills now in operation are daily proving the truth of these statements.

The Evolution of Men's Clothing

By A. SHUMAN & CO.

In the earliest days of the world when the primitive, wandering man suffered from cold and exposure, he naturally utilized the skins of beasts, roughly cured, as a protection against the elements.

Undoubtedly the skins of both wild beasts and domestic animals were used in this way, but in all temperate latitudes the fleece of the sheep was especially convenient for this purpose as it required little preparation.

From this beginning, wool naturally came into more general use by gradual development, and there is little doubt that it was the first fibrous substance used as a covering for the body.

The earliest progress of the development of the textile clothing, woven from the wool, is hidden in the mists of antiquity, but undoubtedly it was in somewhat general use before Noah and his family entered the ark. From that period until the 16th century of our era the use of textiles slowly increased, and since the latter date the development of textile clothing has been rapid, especially in America in the period beginning with the Pilgrim days.

We have had the simple spinning of the Pilgrims—the later work on loom and machine—the crude clothing made at home by the busy housewife—then the more finished though still clumsy garments made by the itinerant tailor, and finally the wonderfully perfected ready made clothing of today.

The best Men's Clothing now made, produced in the Shuman Corner shops by A. Shuman & Co., is fashioned by hand from carefully tested fabrics of pure wool, of artistic pattern and fine finish, such as is used for the fine custom tailoring, all the work being done in large, light, airy workrooms, where cleanliness and right hygiene are rigidly enforced. The highest skill is employed in designing, cutting and finishing each garment, and the clothing is so carefully moulded and shaped to fit the lines of the body and so complete in sizes that practically every man can be fitted quickly and perfectly with garments of the first grade, equal in all respects to careful custom work.

GURNEY HEATERS-GURNEY HEATERS

Gurney HEATERS

Gurney Heaters are more and more preferred as their worth becomes appreciated. It is the unanimous verdict of all who use them that they combine a greater degree of durability, economy and efficiency than any other heater.

Back of each Gurney Heater is the best mechanical and engineering skill, combined with high-grade materials. No part is slighted in the making; hence, the Gurney gives uniform, dependable service.

The Gurney Heater is made for either hot water or steam. It consumes less fuel than others; assures complete combustion and an even and sure circulation of heat.

See that the Gurney is installed and avoid disappointment. If you wish absolute evidence of Gurney superiority, ask your neighbor who owns one. Can be installed in old or new buildings without inconvenience or disturbance. Send for illustrated Catalogue or consult your local dealer.

The gradual growth of this business has become one of the traditions of the business history of Boston. Established in 1848, it followed the fashionable retail centers of the city from one location to another, until settling on its present Boylston Street Site. It has been conducted on lines particularly its own, always following the precepts of its founder by offering the best goods at reasonable prices. In 1890 a branch was opened in New York City, which has proved so successful that a new fireproof building eight stories in height, with a frontage of fifty feet, has been erected by the firm for its accommodation, at 550 and 552 Fifth Ave., between 46th and 47th Streets.

These two establishments stand as notable examples of how perfect and interesting retail stores of the highest class can be made.

The New England Hospital for Women and Children

THIS hospital was incorporated in 1863 for the medical and surgical treatment of women by physicians of their own sex, for affording clinical instruction to women graduates—and for the training of nurses.

It owns and occupies for hospital purposes, nine acres of picturesque upland on Columbus Avenue and Dimock Street, Roxbury. On this property are the Administration and Medical, Surgical, Maternity, Children's, and other buildings, a new modern nurses' home, a complete heating, lighting, and power plant for the entire institution, and an improved steam and electric laundry.

The Out-Patient Department is at No. 29 Fayette Street, City, where over 15,000 patients are treated annually.

The hospital has 125 beds. It is partly supported by voluntary contributions, and fees from those able to pay, while a free bed fund helps in providing care and treatment for the deserving poor.

Notwithstanding that it receives no city or state aid, and its income is not sufficient for its needs, it has so far been able to do over 50 per cent of its work free. Therefore it confidently appeals to the public for more donations and bequests, not only to enable it to continue its good work but to increase its efficiency.

The officers of the hospital are: MISS HELEN F. KIMBALL, President; MRS. EMMA E. BUTLER, Secretary; GEORGE A. GODDARD, Treasurer, and about forty directors.

EDUCATOR CRACKERS

are a part of Boston. That is, in the sense that they are a Boston institution. Some one has said that they never could have originated in any other place. "Educator Crackers" on an envelope, with no other address, always reach Boston safely. This may or may not be because "The Hub" is the home of so many isms and fads. But Educator Crackers are no fad. In 1885 when Dr. William L. Johnson decided to give the world the result of his experimenting with entire wheat flour and meals, he was called a crank. Probably he was. If he hadn't been there never would have been any Educator Crackers, and the world would have been the loser. Educator Crackers have become a standard food; they are a part of the household menu in homes where food value is considered. Starting with a round water cracker, made from entire wheat flour and water, baked sufficiently hard to compel mastication, the varieties now number over a score. Beside the entire wheat, there are Educators made from Corn Meal, Rye, Barley, Oatmeal, Bran, Wheat Germ, Fruit, Chocolate, etc. There is also a long list of cereal specialties—Rusks, Peanut Butter, Cereal Coffee and Gluten productions. Started without any idea of business, Educator Crackers have become a commercial commodity known the world over.

Boston's Transportation System

Boston's local transportation service is recognized by experts from other cities as the standard for a metropolitan community.

Practically every advance in street railroading during the past twenty years has been made first in Boston. This was the first large city to have electric traction, and here the trolley car was perfected. The East Boston tunnel was the first tunnel constructed under the waters of an open harbor for street car use. The improvements in rolling stock for elevated trains which have been adopted, or are being adopted, in New York and elsewhere—the devices for opening and closing car doors by compressed air, and the "easy-access" type of car, conspicuous among them—were invented and first applied by men in the service of the Boston Elevated Railway.

Its Extent and Character

The Boston metropolitan district has a more diversified, extensive and perfectly "articulated" transportation system than has any other large community in the world, and its equipment and operation, the liberality of fare and transfer schedules, and the personnel of the uniformed force employed are generally acknowledged to be unequalled anywhere. With its 474 miles of track the Boston Elevated Railway Company's system covers a territory of 120 square miles, giving service to 12 towns and cities in the Greater Boston community. Over affiliated lines that make direct connection with its own tracks—in most cases without even a change of cars—the Boston Elevated system affords quick transportation facilities to the whole of Eastern Massachusetts, and, by more distant connections, throughout New England.

In its own varied service the Boston Elevated Company employs 3,400 cars of all kinds and 8,000 men. Its weekly payment of wages to these men and other employes in its operating department alone is upwards of $120,000. Its annual expenditure for pensions and good service rewards was $60,000 in 1908, making the company's total yearly payment to its wage earners in the neighborhood of $6,000,000.

Fares, Transfers and "Payments to Common Good"

The five-cent fare will, by the use of free transfers, carry a passenger a distance of twenty miles in one direction over the Boston Elevated Company's lines.

Of the 430,000,000 passengers carried last year 160,000,000 rode on free transfers. This gives metropolitan Boston the cheapest local transportation service, all things considered, of any community in the country, particularly when the contribution of the Elevated Company to lightening the tax-levy upon the citizens of the communities in which it operates is taken into account. These payments "to the common good," as they are called in some cities, were in 1908 as follows:

Compensation tax for the use of streets under the Act of 1897 . . .	$117,188.52
Interest at 4 per cent. on $4,200,971, cost of paving laid in streets by Company . . . . .	168,038.84
Cost of maintaining street paving by Company . . . . .	66,645.45
Amount of subway rental devoted to sinking fund . . . . .	45,716.95
Moving snow removed from sidewalks and roofs (estimated) not less than . . . . .	7,500.00
Total extraordinary payments to the public . . . . .	$405,089.76
Add taxes assessed on real estate . . .	298,326.80
Add taxes assessed on capital stock . .	569,803.58
Total . . . . .	$1,273,220.14
To the above may be added the balance of the subway rental . . . . .	159,805.00
Also the rental of the East Boston tunnel . . . . .	51,685.09
Grand total, which is about 10.5 per cent. of the gross revenue of the Company for the year . . . . .	$1,484,710.23

Fundamental Principles

The local transportation facilities of Boston afford one of the best possible illustrations of the advantages to the community in having public service given by unified management. The West End Street Railway Company, which was the predecessor of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, was a consolidation of six different operating corporations. Before the consolidation there was no uniformity of fares, of running schedules, or of transfers—in fact, there was practically no such thing as free transfer from one line to another, and each of the competing companies ran its cars so as to bring itself the greatest volume of business without reference to public convenience or economy.

Experience everywhere is showing the necessity of unification of public service management, and the Railroad Commission of Massachusetts has recognized it as a guiding principle. The plans for the further development of Boston's remarkable transportation system will necessitate the extension of this principle in the interests of economy, convenience and good service.

AN ITALIAN GARDEN

has been fitted up by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company at the Electric Show as its part in the great Exhibition. This garden is delightfully attractive. The impressive colonnades and graceful pergola, with fountains, water gardens, plants and flowers all illuminated with concealed electric lights make an Italian scene never before attempted in New England.

The Edison Company is acting as host there, entertaining the thousands of its customers and residents from the 33 cities and towns of the Company's territory who are visiting the show. A large corps of the Edison Company's representatives is on duty every day from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. to welcome guests and extend every courtesy.

MOTION PICTURES

Motion pictures have been secured at great expenditure of money, time, patience, and skill during the past decade by experts in the various branches of science and education with which they deal. The results of the labors of trained and qualified experts improved upon and accumulated during this period have now arrived at such a state of perfection that they are justified in calling attention to the various series. Wonders of natural history, haunts of wild birds and beasts, insect life, aviation, microscopic, surgical and medical science have all been caught by the camera with clearness and comprehensiveness which make them easily understood. The moving picture is not a makeshift, but the highest type of entertaining in the history of the world and a most valuable aid to teachers, especially in technical schools and colleges. Its value cannot be measured now, but future generations will benefit more largely through its influence than we of today can possibly realize.
